COURSE INFORMATION

Materials – Textbooks, Readings, Supplementary Readings:

See course blog for specific readings.

Course Requirements

Minimal Technical Skills Needed

We'll meet via Zoom. You should have an adequate computer and internet access. We'll be using blogs and a Facebook Group.

Minimal Social Skills Needed

This is an art class, so as in art, pretty much anything goes. Naked people, weird sex, it's all par for the course. Be prepared to discuss your work in relation to contemporary art. Be willing to respect other people's opinions, even if you do not agree with them.

Instructional Modalities

I think the word, “modality” is cool, don’t you? As mentioned, this is an online class, we will not meet in person. That said, at this time the university is still open and you do have access to labs, studios, equipment, etc. You’ll need to follow the proper protocols for being on campus and using equipment. Please refer to university policy.

Student Responsibilities

Tips for success! Don’t miss class. Don’t have your video turned off, we all want to see you! Don’t be doing other things while we’re having class, that includes fiddling with your phone... Participate, actively! Read the assignments and turn them in on time! Pretend you’re learning and be engaged! Don’t be a jerk.

Grading

Basically in Grad School you get an ‘A’ or a ‘B’. A ‘C’ is failing. See above for how to get an ‘A’. Understand that I was a student once as well, and I know when you’re faking it. Mostly, I treat everyone as an adult, and I understand that being an artist is a life-long pursuit. That doesn’t mean there aren’t deadlines and assignments. I try to be fair. Oh, and please. Do not plagiarize. It is way too easy to get caught, and I have caught people, and they left the program without a degree.

COURSE OUTLINE / CALENDAR

Studio Hours is a self-driven course. You will meet with the listed instructor as necessary to complete the core requirements as listed in the graduate catalog. In spring and fall semesters, you should make an appointment with each of the graduate faculty both before and after mid-term review for a studio visit. Meet regularly with your committee members to solicit their advice.
