

“Never be cruel. Never be cowardly.
Remember, hate is always foolish and love is always wise.
Always try to be nice—but never fail to be kind.”

Course Information

Required Books: These are the editions of the books required for this class. E-books are not a substitute for the actual text. You must have these versions in these translations.

Aristotle. 2001. The Basic Works of Aristotle, ed. Richard McKeon. New York. Modern Library. [ISBN: 978-0375757990]

Augustine. 1994. Augustine Political Writings, trans. Michael W. Tkacz and Douglas Kries. Indianapolis. [ISBN: 978-0872202108]

Confucius. 2003. Analects with Selections from Traditional Commentaries, trans. Edward Slingerland. Indianapolis. Hackett [ISBN: 978-0872206359]

Miller. David. 2003. Political Philosophy: A Very Short Introduction. New York. Oxford University Press. [ISBN: 97800192803955]

Plato. 2012. A Plato Reader: Eight Essential Dialogues, ed. C.D.C. Reeve. Indianapolis. Hackett. [ISBN: 97801603848114]

In addition, material and documents will be posted to D2L and you will also need a copy of the Bible—any translation will do—although I recommend avoiding popular translations that seek to use modern vernacular—you lose the poetry of the language.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Course Description

The 20th century political philosopher Eric Voegelin once noted that “the order of history is the history of order.” This course examines conceptions of political order and disorder from the earliest human communities through the Middle Ages. Topics to be covered may include: the nature of human being, the relationship of the person to the community, communities relations with one another, conceptions of justice, the journey of the soul, civic obligation, and moral order.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. Critical Thinking—Students will be able to differentiate between fact and opinion.
2. Communications—Student Communication will be clear, purposeful, and make appropriate use of evidence, data and technology as applicable.
3. Personal Responsibility—Students will be able to understand their role in their own education.
4. Social Responsibility—Students will demonstrate awareness of societal and/or civic issues.
5. Students will identify key aspects of classical political philosophy.
6. Students will distinguish between political theory and political ideology.

Course Requirements

Instructional Methods

This course is a traditional university seminar that is heavily dependent upon student engagement with both the material and each other. Through this you will learn more than if you simply sat there and watched a power point presentation.

Student Responsibilities

Students are responsible for completing assigned readings and or homework prior to the class for which they are assigned. Furthermore, given the format of the class students should have developed talking points/discussion questions prior to coming to class.

“Reading” for a seminar is not the same thing as reading a novel for purposes of entertainment. You need to familiarize yourself with the arguments advanced in the readings and to engage the material.

Since this is a seminar, your attendance is vital to your success in this course. You also have a responsibility to your peers to be here and to take part. A seminar is a cooperative endeavor that cannot succeed without your preparation and contribution. In other words, your attendance is not only vital to your success, but to the success of your classmates as well.

Students will succeed to the degree that they apply themselves to the material. Ultimately, a university education is up to the student—you own it. It is my recommendation that you review materials developed in class on the day that it is presented as well as periodically throughout the semester.

You will be responsible for writing a series of discussion papers dealing with the assigned readings. These discussion papers are to be distributed to the class prior to the class meeting in which they will be discussed. Students not presenting critical discussion papers will be responsible for reading and commenting on the discussion papers as part of the seminar. Further instructions regarding these assignments will be distributed separately and posted to D2L.

In addition to your discussion papers, you are responsible for writing an academic paper for this class for presentation and discussion at the end of the course. Again, specific instructions will be distributed and posted to D2L.

There will be two examinations, a mid-term and a final covering the content developed in the course. In addition, readings quizzes may be given should it become apparent that students are not keeping up with the assigned readings as per the reading calendar.

Grading and Assessment

Your grade will be determined using the following assessment tools that taken together total 500 possible points:

Mid Term Exam	100	Quizzes	50
Final Exam	100	Attendance/Participation	100
Final Paper/Presentation	100	Discussion Papers	50

Final grades in this course will be determined by following scale:

455-500	A	300-349	D
405-454	B	0-299	F
350-404	C

COURSE AND UNIVERSITY PROCEDURES/POLICIES

Attendance: Attendance will be taken in every class meeting and you would be well-advised to attend every class—if for no other reason than the fact that experience demonstrates that you will not do well if you are not here. The attendance policy is relatively simple. Each of you has three absences with which to do whatever you want without incurring a penalty. If you don't feel well, you can miss class. If you oversleep, you can miss class. If you would rather do something else, you can miss class. There is no requirement for notes from doctors, parents, pastors, or friends. However, every absence over three will incur a five-point penalty. Three absences in a Tuesday/Thursday class is equivalent to a week and half off (i.e. "Spring Break +)—and if you miss a week and half of class you should probably drop the course.

You may use your three absences for any purpose or reason that you choose. Do not bring notes and/or excuses as they are unnecessary under the terms of the generous attendance policy. (At my discretion, under extreme circumstances that are verifiable, an exception may be granted—but the circumstance must be extreme according to my judgment and verifiable.)

Now, with that said, the success of a seminar is dependent upon our interactions with one another. You have a responsibility to yourself and a responsibility to the other members of the class to contribute—and you cannot contribute if you are not here. You will discover that a seminar is not like a traditional class. The idea is that we will learn from each other, and if you are not there you cannot teach and you cannot learn.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

The only exceptions to the allowed absence policy are exam dates and dates when you are scheduled to present your discussion paper or your final paper. You must be in class for exams. Make-up exams and exceptions to the presentation requirement will only be given under the most extreme and verifiable circumstances.

Of course attendance is more than merely being in your seat on time (although timeliness is a virtue). You should come to class prepared for class. Readings (both the primary texts and the discussion papers) assigned for particular dates should be completed before class. You may have quizzes over the readings, so it is important that you arrive at class on time and that you have adequately prepared for class prior to attending.

Electronics Policy: Experience has demonstrated that most people do not really understand appropriate ways to use technology while in class.

Cell phones

Numerous studies have demonstrated a strong correlation between phone use in class and poor academic performance (at least three different studies have determined that phone use in class may result in the drop of an entire letter grade for students who insist that the world will end if they aren't engaged in texting or scrolling through social media). For this reason, the following guidelines are in effect for this class:

You are to use your phone during class.

You will place your phone face down on the desk in front of you where the phone itself is visible. Once placed there, you should not touch it again until class is dismissed.

Failure to comply with this dictate will result in the imposition of a "telephone tax." If you are seen touching or using your phone in class you will be assessed a five point penalty off of your grade for each infraction.

Laptops and Tablets

The use of laptops and tablets for note-taking must be approved by the professor. Again, science indicates that taking notes by hand is more effective at helping students retain information. This, in turn, assists in developing analytical and critical thinking skills appropriate to the university as a learning environment and for persons receiving a university degree.

Earbuds, Media Players, and Other Electronic Devices

While it is possible to carry your entertainment options wherever you go and wherever you happen to be, this class is not such a venue. Earbuds, headphones, etc. are a distraction for both you, as a student who is supposed to be actively engaged and responsible for your own education, and me. Put simply, it is rude to be listening to something else when you are ostensibly engaged in listening to someone else or in a conversation. Furthermore, it will have a negative effect upon your mastery of the course material.

Academic Dishonesty

Academic dishonesty consists of any form of cheating or academic misconduct related to your role as a student. Examples of academic dishonesty may include, but is not limited to, plagiarism, copying another student's work, cheating on exams, quizzes, and/or assignments.

The penalty for academic dishonesty in this class is an immediate "0" on the graded material on which the cheating was discovered.

In addition, in accordance with university procedure 13.99.99.R0.03 Undergraduate Academic Dishonesty, you will be reported to the academic dean of the college in which your major department is housed and the department head in your major department so that a record of your offense may be maintained for purposes of future disciplinary action should it be required.

Under the policy, repeat instances of academic dishonesty may result in expulsion from the university. With this in mind, consider that any short-term gain that you hope to attain by engaging in unethical behavior is simply not worth it.

Conduct

Student conduct in the university is governed by university procedure 13.02.99.R0.06 Standards of Student Conduct. The university requires that all syllabi include a statement from section 2.2 of that procedure. Section 2.2 of the policy deals with student "obligations and responsibilities." Under the terms of the procedure, students have the obligation "to follow the tenets of common decency and acceptable behavior commensurate with aspiration implied by a college education."

Bear in mind that your behavior reflects not only upon you, but also upon the university. You should demonstrate respect for the institution, your professors, and your fellow students, in addition to your own education. This is true even in the context of courses in which controversial topics and issues (such as a political science course) might be discussed.

Ultimately, I will serve as the arbiter of what constitutes appropriate respect and behavior in the context of this class. Students who fail to treat the institution, class, professor, and/or other students appropriately may be reported to the Dean of Students for disciplinary action should it be required.

Contrary to what many people seem to believe, a university education is not a right. Rather it is privilege—and it ought to be treated as such. You should remember that this course is part of YOUR education. And your education is, in turn, ultimately your responsibility. Experience demonstrates that some students seek to shift responsibility to others: faculty, other students, etc. This is unfortunate and demonstrates an unwillingness to own that which is yours to own. Your professors and other university staff are here to help you to succeed, but it is up to you to decide that you are going to succeed and take the steps necessary to make that happen.

I cannot force you to do your homework or read the material assigned for class, or study material presented in class, etc.—that is up to you. However, your academic success is dependent upon you doing those sorts of things. If you choose not to and your academic performance is less than adequate, it is not the fault of your professor or anyone else. It is yours. The institution and I are here to help you in any way that we reasonably can, but ultimately a university education is your responsibility.

Syllabus Change Policy

The syllabus is a guide. Circumstances and events, such as student progress, may make it necessary for me to modify the syllabus during the semester. Any changes made to the syllabus will be announced in advance.
