COURSE INFORMATION

Course Description: The concept of globalization, as seen through various disciplines, will be presented, contrasted, and critiqued. Special focus is given to developing a research acumen to investigate global issues and problems. A series of group presentations addressing a global topic or issue will require students to apply globalization theories learned throughout the semester, working to increase students' awareness of global issues and events.

Course Materials: There are no required textbooks this could but it will require extensive outside reading and research. Additional handouts and readings may be provided in class and/or online.

Additional Requirements: Access to myLeo Online (D2L Brightspace) and work processing system, preferably Microsoft Word. Also, for presentation creation and record, I suggest familiarizing yourself with a presentation platform which also has audio/visual capabilities. Students have successfully used GoogleSlides, Canva and Loom in the past.

Student Learning Outcomes:

1. The student will demonstrate global awareness by looking at issues from multiple perspectives and drawing conclusions for effective, culturally sensitive problem-solving.
2. The student will exhibit the ability to communicate clearly and effectively.
3. The student will apply critical thinking skills and reasoning to demonstrate continuous inquiry, problem-solving, and learning.
4. The student will understand the complexity of framing a global "problem" and the ethics, biases, cultural differences, and context which complicate forming effective solutions.

What can you learn in this class & how will we accomplish it?

- How to investigate and explore the multiple dimensions (and causations) of significant global “problems” through guided research with a group;
 - o Students will work in small groups to investigate a global event, issue, or trend, determining its context, current status, and perceived implications for the US. Additionally, students will consult a variety sources in doing so, learning to use credible sources while also discovering/anticipating biases in coverage.
- Examine elements of your own identity and culture so you understand how you interact with identities and cultures other than your own;
 - o Students will participate in reflective and interactive learning to label, understand, and acknowledge elements of their identity and how it shapes their interaction with the world.
 - o Students will engage in exercises that provide feedback about their level of global competence, identifying areas of strength and growth in cultivating positive working relationships with others.
- How to develop and refine your independent research skills, specifically in your capacity to use effective reasoning and critical thinking;
 - o Students will work independently and with their group on the chosen research project outside of class, using available resources to gather information to contextualize and frame their global issue.
- How to access, gather, and synthesize complex information from a variety of sources and articulate your findings through oral and written means;
 - o Students will sift through collected information to form and support a general thesis statement for their topic. There is significant leniency in this process and room for students to take their project in a chosen direction.
 - o Decision-making will occur at the group level and the group is responsible for prioritizing what is presented in their oral and written work.
 - o Students will submit a written work (process paper) which outlines the groups progression towards their final work.
- How to look at research (and the presentation of it) as a process of constant improvement and refinement
 - o Students will participate in regular opportunities to share their learning by presenting their work in various forms and to varying groups of people to refine their oral presentation skills and also learn how to strengthen an argument.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Instructional Methods:

Class will take various forms- from lectures to presentations to activities in and out of class. Students commit to being active participants regardless of the mode of instruction. Students should come to class ready to participate, both in terms of preparation as assigned work and attitude toward class and colleagues.

Participation: Students must attend all class sessions unless they are able to present a valid university-recognized excuse. Though ninety percent of life is showing up, we want honors students to demonstrate strength in the other ten percent: going the extra mile through active involvement and contribution to the class. You will be asked to stretch your comfort zones. Participation will be documented through in-class activities, reflections and discussions both in class and online through D2L. Participation will be measured through completing in and out of class activities. A detailed breakdown of assignments and grades will be posted in the D2L course shell.

Group Presentations: The majority of the semester will be spent in small groups conducting research on a chosen topic. Topics will center on a global issue to be investigated and presented to peers, colleagues and university staff/faculty. The assignment will be broken down into several steps. Details of the project expectations and point distribution will be available as a separate assignment discussed in-class and available through the online course shell.

Category	Item	Points
In-Class Participation/ Activities & Homework	Daily Activities/Participation	30 point total
	GCAA Completion	5 points
	Cultural Identity Essay	5 points
Out-of-class Assignments	10
Global Research Project:	Presentation 1:	10
	Presentation 2	15
	Presentation 3	20
	Process Paper	5
	Peer Evaluation	10
	Total Points	100

Grading

Students' course grade will be calculated according to the following scale:

A = EXCELLENT 90-100 Points

B = GOOD 80-89 Points

C = AVERAGE 70-79 Points

D = POOR 60-69 Points

F = FAILURE less than 60 Points

TECHNOLOGY REQUIREMENTS, ACCESS AND NAVIGATION

Students will need access to a word processor and printer to prepare all assignments in the course. Additionally, components of the course such as the gradebook and discussions, will take place in D2L Brightspace.

D2L is committed to performing key application testing when new browser versions are released. New and updated functionality is also tested against the latest version of supported browsers. However, due to the frequency of some browser releases, D2L cannot guarantee that each browser version will perform as expected. If you encounter any issues with any of the browser versions listed in the tables below, contact D2L support, who will determine the best course of action for resolution. Reported issues are prioritized by supported browsers and then maintenance browsers.

Supported browsers are the latest or most recent browser versions that are tested against new versions of D2L products. Customers can report problems and receive support for issues. For an optimal experience, D2L recommends using supported browsers with D2L products. Maintenance browsers are older browser versions that are not tested extensively against new versions of D2L products. Customers can still report problems and receive support for critical issues; however, D2L does not guarantee all issues will be addressed.

A maintenance browser becomes officially unsupported after one year. Note the following: • Ensure that your browser has JavaScript and Cookies enabled. • For desktop systems, you must have Adobe Flash Player 10.1 or greater. • The Brightspace Support features are now optimized for production environments when using the Google Chrome browser, Apple Safari browser, Microsoft Edge browser, Microsoft Internet Explorer browser, and Mozilla Firefox browsers.
