The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Course Description

Welcome to US-World Cultures: Perspectives in Anthropology! This course will provide you with an introduction to the field of Anthropology and will explore how the subfields of Anthropology can help us understand complex multicultural issues in our increasingly global world. Using anthropological methods, theories, and techniques we will explore a variety of topics including globalization, race, ethnicity, gender, kinship, marriage, religion, inequality, and politics using diverse cross-cultural examples from the United States and around the world.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. Develop a foundational knowledge of basic anthropological methods and theories
2. Define key anthropological terms for understanding cross-cultural phenomena
3. Examine contemporary multicultural issues within a global context
4. Recognize the value of using an anthropological, interdisciplinary approach to understanding human behavior
5. Demonstrate an understanding of key course concepts through reflective writing assignments

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Minimal Technical Skills Needed

The course requires at least basic skills in D2L Brightspace, participation in online discussion boards, opening a web browser, and using word processing programs such as Microsoft Word or similar to submit assignments.

Instructional Methods

This course is 100% online and is taught asynchronously. Instruction will be a combination of lecture and class discussion. Students will be assessed through written assignments and reading quizzes.

Student Responsibilities or Tips for Success in the Course

1. Log into the course D2L Brightspace page frequently to check for announcements, access course content, and stay up-to-date on assignments and course progress.
2. Keep up with assigned readings, recorded lectures, and documentaries by following the course schedule.
3. Respect others' rights to hold opinions and beliefs that differ from your own. Challenge or criticize the idea, not the person, and maintain a respectful dialogue.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

4. When creating or responding to discussion posts support your statements. Provide a rationale for your statement and support it using arguments or examples from the lectures, readings, or other assigned materials.
5. If you are struggling with a concept or need clarification on a topic, contact the instructor by email, use virtual office hours, or schedule a time to meet virtually.

You are not expected to agree with everything in the assigned readings and videos. Rather, these are meant to serve as examples of the types of dialogues individuals can have regarding multicultural topics and should serve as “jumping off points” for your own ideas and discussions.

GRADING

Final grades in this course will be based on the following scale:

- A = 90%-100%
- B = 80%-89%
- C = 70%-79%
- D = 60%-69%
- F = 59% or Below

Total points corresponding to the final letter grades

- A = 486 - 540 Points
- B = 432 - 485 Points
- C = 378 - 431 Points
- D = 324 - 377 Points
- F = < 323 Points

Assessments

Weekly Discussions

Each week you will create one discussion post related to that week’s topic and respond to two posts from other students for a total of three postings each week (15 weekly discussions at 15 points each for a total of 225 points). Your discussion post can include a question from the readings or lecture, or you can post about a news article relating to that week’s topic. If you choose to post a statement about a news article, make sure to include an explanation of how it relates to the weekly topic as well as the link to the article. News articles should come from a reliable source. Some examples include NY Times, BBC, Reuters, and Time. You are welcome to reply to as many posts as you would like, however, only three posts will be counted towards your weekly discussion grade. Make sure that your posts are thought-provoking and engage with the readings and/or lecture material rather than just stating opinions.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Reading Quizzes

There will be an online reading quiz at the end of each module to test your reading comprehension and evaluate your mastery of core concepts for that module. Quizzes may be any combination of multiple choice, fill in the blank, or short answer questions.

Unit Reflections

Each student will write five (5) short reflections (400-500 words, 10 points each) on units covered in class. Unit reflections require students to synthesize information from class readings, lectures, and discussions in response to unit-specific prompts. Prompts for each reflection will be available on D2L Brightspace.

Unit Reflections are due February 4, February 18, March 4, April 8, and April 22.

Video Reflections

Each student will write two video reflections (600-750 words, 25 points each), each on a different film chosen from the available options posted on D2L Brightspace. We will watch more than two films over the course of the semester – it is up to you to choose which two films you reflect upon for these assignments. Short video clips do not count, and a list of video options will be posted on the assignment page. Video reflection papers should include a brief summary of how the film depicts the culture or topic at hand, opinions you have on this depiction, and how the film relates to other course materials read or discussed for that week's topic.

Video reflections are due April 1 and May 6.

Midterm: Ethnography Project

One of the goals of this course is to train you to think like an anthropologist. Instead of a traditional midterm exam, you will spend one hour (60 min.) in a public place observing peoples' social interactions. This could include spaces like a park, a store, a coffee shop, or the public library. You may also choose to conduct your mini ethnography at a cultural event such as a sporting event, protest rally, festival, or similar event. Please be mindful of your environment, respect the privacy of the people there, and be sure that it is okay to take notes. For the ethnography assignment you will turn in a typed copy of your field notes describing your observations, a map of the area or space you observed, and a written analysis based on your field notes.

The ethnography project is due March 25.

Grades

Assignments	Points possible
Weekly Discussions (16x15pts)	240 pts
Reading Quizzes (10 x15 pts)	150 pts
Unit Reflections (5 x10 pts)	50 pts
Video Reflections (2 x 25 pts)	50 pts

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.
