Course Description

Catalog description: This course is an introduction to the interdisciplinary study of Latin America and the Latin American Diaspora in the United States, as manifested through politics, history, language, the arts, literature, economics, and social realities. Students are exposed to the principal themes and methodologies of Latin American and U.S. Latino Studies, by synthesizing contributions from various disciplines. The course emphasizes interdisciplinary collaboration across various fields of study and provides students with a basic knowledge base for understanding Latin America and Latina/os in the United States in both a contemporary and historical perspective.

From the instructor: Three regions we cover this semester are in many ways products of their relationship with the United States: Mexico, Cuba, and Puerto Rico. The Mexican and Cuban revolutions of the 20th century each led to massive migration to the U.S., and the American government had an interest in the outcomes of both conflicts. Puerto Rico started out as a colony in the wake of the Spanish-American War, and has existed under a dominant power for more than a century. The histories of these regions affected the sentiments of migrants who settled in the U.S., their children, and grandchildren. These groups have left a significant cultural imprint on the nation, but also have histories of alienation from the majority American population. Because of this history, studying issues of identity is important. Through readings, lectures, and media, we will examine what identity means for these groups, including issues regarding; imperialism, racism, ethnic style and culture, gender, street gangs, and biculturalism.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. Students will efficiently discuss in writing histories and major issues regarding Latina/o populations in the United States, including interpretations of ethnic identity.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Instructional Methods

This course consists of regular attendance for points, a total of five class discussions (in-class and online for each), two exams, and a research essay of at 6-8 pages which is to be turned in near the end of the semester.

Student Responsibilities or Tips for Success in the Course

Participation is essential for success in this course. Five points will be deducted for every three unexcused absences. Discussions are especially graded on participation, and an absence during those sessions equals an 0 grade for that particular assignment. Absolutely no smartphone use is permitted, and phones should be removed from desks during class times.

Plagiarism: Taking work directly from other sources and presenting it as your own is a serious academic offense, and will automatically result in a “0” grade for your paper, and possibly for the class. In addition, students will need to meet with the instructor for explanation and will be subject to disciplinary action by the University. Modern technology has made detection of plagiarism easier than ever before, and faculty members in most cases have adopted a “zero tolerance” policy for such actions. All work produced for this class must come directly from LALS 101 students, and be specific to LALS 101 for the Fall 2022 semester.

GRADING

Final grades in this course will be based on the following scale:

- A = 90%-100%
- B = 80%-89%
- C = 70%-79%
- D = 60%-69%
- F = 59% or Below

Assessments

Attendance and participation = 100 points
Discussions (5) = 100 points
Exams (2) = 100 points each
Research paper = 100 points

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Total = 500 points

Final grades are based on percentages of 400
