COURSE OVERVIEW AND OBJECTIVES:

A study of the fundamentals of business writing and speaking, both formal and informal, on a variety of media. Imbedded in this course is the study of life-long skills related to interpersonal communication, personal branding and intercultural business communication.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

This course is designed to develop the following professional skills:

- Students will understand how business professionals communicate through formal and informal communication networks as well as in groups. (Weeks 1-3)
- Students will improve the ability to express themselves in writing, understanding how business writing differs from other types of writing, including positive, negative, neutral and persuasive messages. (Weeks 4-6 and Week 14)
- Students will begin to develop skills related to personal branding including social media, resume writing, interviewing, personal selling and persuasive writing/presentation. (Weeks 4, 9, 10 & 12)
- Students will understand the ethical goals of business communication and tools for communicating ethically in business. (Week 14)

REQUIRED TEXT AND LICENSES:

NO COST: Business Communication for Success: a free textbook in either .PDF or EBOOK formats. It is available at <https://open.umn.edu/opentextbooks/textbooks/business-communication-for-success>

Must Purchase: PitchVantage cloud-based software will cost you $30.00 for a license for this semester. I chose a free textbook so you could afford this. Without it, you cannot complete the course.

NO COST: Big Interview comes with a pre-paid prescription from the College of Business for each of you. (I will send you the live link when we begin those assignments.) LinkedIn Learning is also prepaid.

COURSE FORMAT:

This course is entirely Web-based. You will find most of the material and information you need to complete this course in the syllabus and on the MyLeoOnline course management website. It does require access to additional web tools, and like most online classes requires a great deal of independent work.

CAUTION: Because this is a summer session course, we will move extremely fast through the material and course requirements. Keeping up with the reading and course requirements is the student's responsibility. This course can be challenging during a normal length semester. Reducing the available time by 75% and still completing the work is going to be particularly difficult. So buckle up!

SYLLABUS SUBJECT TO CHANGE STATEMENT:

The course will probably follow the schedule outlined in this syllabus, but may be subject to adjustments based on what actually happens in class and on campus. This includes the possibility of a change in the course grade basis if circumstances dictate the need to add or eliminate an assignment or something of that nature. If this happens, students will be informed in writing.

COURSE POLICIES AND INSTRUCTOR EXPECTATIONS:

Students are required to meet the expectations listed below.

- Professional Behavior: It is important that you maintain a professional demeanor at all times, including during "electronic communication". This is especially so in a Business Communications class! Texas A&M - Commerce expects this from you, as do current and future employers.
- Assignments:
 1. Submitted assignments must be correctly formatted and free of grammatical and stylistic errors. Students in MGT 303 should have at least some skill with software for word processing, graphics, and presentations, and with web browsers and search engines. Spelling and grammatical errors will detract from your grade!
 2. Assignments must be turned in on time. Assignments are due at the date listed. Start working on each assignment as soon as you can and make sure that you have the all assignments submitted by the specified due dates. You MUST turn in all written assignments ON TIME. I will accept late assignments. However, there will be a significant penalty. For each day that your assignment is late, I will deduct 10 POINTS from your grade. If you do not meet the posted deadline (even by one or two seconds), I will deduct 10 points. If you do not turn the assignment in by that due time the next day, I will deduct an additional 10 points, and so on. Saturdays and Sundays do count towards the total days late, and after 10 days you shouldn't bother because it is a zero. I am constantly hearing harrowing stories of lost electricity, lost internet, web upload issues, file compatibility problems, and a host of personal issues that preclude making the deadline. Things happen, which why I suggest you start early, and is also why I allow for late work. But none of the reasons listed above, nor any others I have ever heard add to the time frame or due date of the assignment.
 3. Assignments must be complete. You must complete and submit all components at the specified due date and time to receive credit for the assignment. Work that is only "half-finished" gets a "half grade".

4. Regular and timely attendance and participation: Because the exam content comes partially from the material we cover in class, and because attendance and participation are graded, you need to be in class. Attendance here does not mean “roll check”, it means logins to view the material posted. Failure to attend will result in failure or administrative drop from the class. Participation means participating with our online discussions, which usually occur weekly, and make up a portion of the grade as shown below. It is the responsibility of each student to keep up with the scheduled readings, discussions, and assignments/exams.

5. Online Discussion (Participation) Grades

The “Discussions” option from the “Activities” dropdown menu on D2L is where these will take place. I will post topics, cases and/or questions to generate discussion among you. You are encouraged to respond to your classmates’ questions and comments. In grading these I am more interested in quality than quantity, but there is a quantity component. Students should respond to the questions directly and should expand the dialogue by responding to postings from other students. I read them all and in doing so, I first categorize them into general quality:

- ✓ (Poor/Average) “Me too” and “I agree” responses, or hollow responses that miss the point or express an uninformed opinion; or responses that merely echo what another student has already expressed. Since our discussions generally relate to the assigned reading, my least favorite are those responses where a student obviously hasn’t reviewed the material, and is trying to “wing it”.
- ✓ (Good/Excellent) Responses that communicate an understanding of course concepts, or a unique example that relates to the discussion question. Responses that provide cogent analysis, evaluation or examples that characterize a point of view; Responses that demonstrate exceptional insight. In other words, those who read the assigned material, and listened to the lecture (if applicable).

The second part of discussion assessment involves the timing of your participation. I like to see students that check and write and check again throughout the week to respond to other students and to monitor reactions to their own posts. Expected participation is writing your own response and responding to at least three other student posts. A student who logs onto the discussion once, posts all four times as required and logs out never to be heard of again is graded poorly. Those who do this all on the last day are my least favorite and are graded accordingly.

6. E-mail: Routinely check your Texas A&M - Commerce email account. This is my primary mechanism for communicating outside of the class. Additionally, I check my e-mail several times a day, so this is the best way to reach me. I strive to respond to any email within 24 hours (even if it just to acknowledge receipt of the email while I continue to work on the request). Most are returned within a much tighter response time.
7. Plagiarism: This course makes liberal use of Turnitin, a software package that tracks sources and gives an originality score. If your score on any assignment exceeds 20%, it affects your grade. Above 40% is a zero on the assignment. Above 50% and the instructor involves the provost's office to record the instance and/or to fail you from the course. In these cases, the student has the option to appeal the finding through the university, to the standing University Discipline Committee.

Loaning your paper to someone for guidance so they can "see how to do it" also results in a score reduction. For details, See 13.99.99.R0.03

<http://www.tamuc.edu/aboutUs/policiesProceduresStandardsStatements/rulesProcedures/13students/undergraduates/13.99.99.R0.03UndergraduateAcademicDishonesty.pdf>

- Make-up Exams or Late Assignments will only be accepted without point reduction if you obtain university-approved documentation for your excuse. There are no make-up assignments for poor performance on a previous assignment.
- Changes to Schedule: While I plan to stick to the class schedule, there might be occasions to modify the schedule. In these cases, all changes will be announced in class and e-mail. It is your responsibility to become aware of any such changes.
