Course Description

This course offers students an opportunity to explore teacher education and human systems as networked systems including patterns that reveal affordances and challenges inherent to the system. Students will explore the literature about complex adaptive systems, complexity theory, system mapping, case studies, and research specific to disciplines represented in the class.

Student Learning Outcomes

Through learning experiences in this class students should be able to:

1. Develop background knowledge of complexity theory and Complex Adaptive Systems (CAS).
2. Synthesize complexity theory literature relative to their doctoral inquiry.
3. Apply the tools of Adaptive Action to identify, map, and present the patterns of a complex system relevant to their doctoral inquiry.
4. Participate in critical discussions of assigned readings.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Minimal Technical Skills Needed

Students should be prepared to use the learning management system (D2L Brightspace), Microsoft Office software, presentation and graphics programs, Google Suite of office tools and apps, chat programs such as Adobe Connect and Zoom, VoiceThread, and Padlet.

Instructional Methods

Although this class is an online class, it will meet for a video conference every Tuesday from 6:00-7:00pm. If you are unable to attend, the session will be recorded for later viewing, and you are required to complete course work associated with the recorded sessions.

The course is organized into modules and uses an inquiry and multimodal learning approach. Each module contains reading assignments, recorded lectures, group discussions, and individual activities designed to support the acquisition of theoretical knowledge and applied learning experiences appropriate for supporting your doctoral inquiry.

Student Responsibilities or Tips for Success in the Course

Students are responsible for engaging in their own learning. This includes being aware of and meeting deadlines, checking class emails, course announcements posted in D2L, asking questions to clarify understanding, and actively participating in course activities.

Assessments

1. Participation, Preparation & Professionalism: Attend all classes and actively engage in discussions and activities throughout the course. Demonstrate knowledge and behavior appropriate for doctoral studies.
2. Weekly Class Reflections: Prepare a brief summary of your personal inquiry and learning journey relative to the topics and material contained in each module.
3. Individual Project: Prepare and present a visual representation of a complex adaptive system connected to your personal inquiry or doctoral research.
4. Self-Assessment: Prepare a critical pre/post self-assessment that addresses your learning in the class, addresses each assignment and suggests a final grade.

GRADING

All assignments will be assessed using the following scale and will be held to standards appropriate for doctoral level studies. Additional grading information will be available on rubrics developed in class.

A = excellent/outstanding B = good/commendable C = developing F = unsatisfactory

Interaction with Instructor Statement

I firmly believe students need feedback soon after an assignment is turned in. I will make sure that all quizzes and assignments are graded after the end of the module. Any items turned in early will not be graded until after the due date. For the projects, I will need two weeks after the module closes to complete the evaluations.

From time-to-time, I will make comments on the discussion board or Padlet, but my role is to facilitate the discussion by asking thought-provoking questions or extending your thinking with my experiences and connections.

Please know that I, your instructor, welcome your questions and concerns. Please stay in contact with me for assignment clarifications, to offer feedback, and/or to update me on your status that may impact your success with this course. The best way to reach me is through email: Laura.Slay@tamuc.edu.
