Course Description

This is an introductory course that provides students with the concept of the sociological imagination, which they can both apply to course materials and their everyday lives. In fact, the importance of using the sociological imagination to think critically about daily life is one of the major themes of the course. This course will provide a broad overview of the field of sociology by discussing various sub-fields of study that sociologists pursue. This course is blended, meaning that part of the course will be online. Make sure to check your D2L page for assignments, announcements, etc. Some weeks we may meet online instead of in person.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Student Learning Outcomes (Should be measurable; observable; use action verbs)

1. Apply the sociological imagination into their daily lives by analyzing media they consume daily.
2. Gain a broad introduction to the field of Sociology by learning the methods, theories and subfields of the discipline.
3. Apply critical thinking skills to social processes and social identities.
4. Examine the ways in which identities and institutions are social constructions by comparing different cultural contexts of identities and institutions.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Minimal Technical Skills Needed

To be successful in the course you must be able to use D2L, and using Microsoft Word and PowerPoint.

Instructional Methods

This course will be delivered entirely online. You must have access to D2L in order to complete the requirements for this course.

Student Responsibilities or Tips for Success in the Course

You must log into D2L multiple times a week in order to be successful in this course. All course communications and assignments will be completed through D2L. If you have questions regarding access to D2L or technical requirements, information to reach out to Campus IT is provided below.

GRADING

Final grades in this course will be based on the following scale:

A = 90%-100% 900-1000 points

B = 80%-89% 800-899

C = 70%-79% 700-799

D = 60%-69% 600-699

F = 59% or Below 599

Late Work Policy: Please write to me ahead of time to have late work excused. All other late work will have points taken off based on how late the work is turned in.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Assessments

Social Issue Project (1@200 points) Choose a social issue and analyze it from a sociological perspective. A sociological perspective recognizes the importance of discourse in creating social constructions of race, gender, sexuality, family, marriage, etc. Students can do this project in a variety of mediums: podcast, story, academic paper, short film/documentary, etc. The project will have to address a topic related to the course from the sociological imagination

Weekly In class and Online Assignments (10 X 20 points: 200): Each week students will post to a discussion board or complete in an class assignment for credit. These assignments will require students to apply sociological concepts and theories to social issues people face in daily life.

Exams (3 Exams @ 150 points): Students will complete four non-comprehensive examinations throughout the course that will be open for a few days at a time. All exams will be timed and include multiple-choice and true/false questions. There will be an exam review sheet provided for each exam.

Student Learning Outcome 1 will be assessed by the media analysis essay.
Student Learning Outcome 2 will be assessed through exams and weekly discussion posts.

Student Learning Outcome 3 will be assessed by through exams, the media analysis essay and weekly discussion posts.

Student Learning Outcome 4 will be assessed by through exams, the media analysis essay and weekly discussion posts.
