Course Description

This course explores the traditions of schooling and classrooms from global perspectives of current political, social, and familial issues impacting schooling and classrooms worldwide. Students will analyze the learning environment and the human experiences of teachers and learners and compare U.S. schools and the American educational system to those of other countries.

Optional: *Students may choose to participate in an early field experience classroom observation with varied and diverse student populations designed to analyze the learning environment and the human experiences of teachers and learners. Ten clock hours of Early Field Experience of classroom observation.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Student Learning Outcomes

By the conclusion of the course, the students will demonstrate the following outcomes:

1. SLO1: Students will demonstrate knowledge of the interconnectedness of global dynamics. Students will be able to identify current issues in American and Global Education Systems with particular attention to education structure and student diversities (e.g. governance, curriculum, language, gender, socioeconomic, ethnic, and academics).
2. SLO2: Students will be able to apply knowledge of the interconnectedness of global dynamics. Students will be active and engaged participants in discussions by analyzing, construction/creating, and evaluating information presented within the assignments, class activities, and EFE field-experiences.
3. SLO3: Students will be able to view themselves as engaged citizens with and interconnected and diverse world. Students will examine current issues in education with attention to language, gender, socioeconomic, ethnic, and disability-based academic diversity and equity.
4. Students will examine and analyze the culture of schooling and classrooms from the perspective of current political, social, and familial issues impacting schooling and classrooms.
5. Optional: Students may participate in 10 hours of early field-experience in diverse classrooms to gain an understanding of the roles of elementary, middle school, and/or high school teachers.
6. Students will communicate effectively, utilizing written and oral expression, throughout the course.

GOALS: The goals of this class include, but are not limited to, providing a critical overview of historical, intellectual, social, and political foundations of American education.

1. Emphasis on analysis of differing views regarding the relationship of public schools and American society.
2. Explore current controversies that will impact schools and teachers in the years ahead.
3. Provide an enriched integrated pre-service experience that allows for active recruitment and support of undergraduate students interested in careers in teaching.
4. Provide ample opportunities for students to engage in written and oral reflection as it relates to teaching.
5. Examine current issues in education with attention to language, gender, socioeconomic, ethnic, and disability-based academic diversity and equity.

This course is designed to be taught through activities and quizzes, as well as face-to-face lectures and class discussion.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Minimal Technical Skills Needed

Students will need to use: The learning management system (D2L), Google Apps for Education, web navigation, Microsoft Word, PowerPoint, or other presentation software, etc.

Instructional Methods

Instructional delivery for this course will be face-to-face. The learning management system (D2L) will be used at times throughout the semester. Coursework will include readings from the assigned textbook, quizzes, and class discussions related to the textbook content. Additionally, various assignments sourced from web-based materials will be included. Regular online engagement is crucial for the following purposes: (1) staying updated with announcements, (2) checking MyLeo-Mail, (3) reviewing assignments, (4) referring to the course outline, (5) accessing returned documents and feedback on graded assignments, and (6) communicating with the instructor and fellow classmates as required.
