COURSE INFORMATION

Materials – Textbooks, Readings, Supplementary Readings

There is no textbook required for this class. However, each student is requested to secure any introduction to sociology book for personal review. There is no particular introductory to sociology book that you should secure/purchase. However, you are likely to need one if you don't recall several sociological terms learned through the years as you have taken various sociological courses.

Special Note for this semester: This semester will be an experiment between both CJ 470.01B Criminal Justice Internship and Soc 485.01B Senior Seminar in Sociology. Both classes will meet in the same classroom at the same time (MWF 1:00pm – 1:50pm).

All (both classes) will meet every Monday (this class period will be used for a common thread).

Monday, we will address career preparedness, have speakers visiting and sharing, reading and discussing common/same interest research articles and other related material.

Wednesday, the first half of the semester the criminal justice students will meet (start the second week, Sept 1, 2025 – Oct 26, 2025).

Friday, the first half of the semester the sociology majors will meet.

The Criminal Justice majors will meet on Friday, Oct 31, 2025.

All students will want to pay careful, close attention to all assignments and due dates, regardless of when your class is meeting in person. Those days that your class does not meet should be filled with expected assignments, you reading identified material or performing some other educational tasks associated with your class.

Required Readings (given as handouts and placed in Resource Area in D2L):

Course Description

Catalog Course Description:

SOC 485 - Senior Seminar in Sociology

Hours: 3

The course examines ways sociology majors can synthesize sociology curriculum and apply the sociological perspective to the real world, along with their knowledge and skills outside the academic world in real work settings. In addition, this course will guide students in the process of resume preparation, interviewing skills, graduate program, and career opportunities available with a sociology major. Special attention will be given to leadership skills needed in the world of work. Prerequisite SOC 111, 331, 332, 436, and a senior status.

Course Description:

This class will use a face-to-face and online format. Every student should make sure he/she is familiar with D2L. Deadlines, due dates on D2L are set so please do not miss any of them. The class will review the dates and assignments placed on D2L, but it will be the student's responsibility to complete all assignments placed on D2L or required to be turned in during class time. There will be no automatic opportunity for make-up or submitting assignments late. Such a matter will be dealt with on an individual basis.

This course will engage in threaded discussions, written assignments, and other modes of sharing information. We will explore what one can do with a sociology degree. Through readings, discussions and class participation this class will engage in bringing all that has been learned (or that which students were expected to learn) about sociology together, and to cement a foundation of sociological knowledge possessed by each student. Students will be expected to be engaging and to demonstrate their level of sociological knowledge by using the jargon and displaying a degree of sociological professionalism.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

This description of the course represents the desire of the professor. Perhaps Thomas Schmid said it best when he pinned these words: "In an ideal, fully integrated sociological curriculum, a capstone would bring to fruition years of disciplined study and practice, offering every student the opportunities to synthesize prior knowledge, [and] engage in free-flowing sociological discourse" (1993:219).

Course Goals:

This class is structured to be the last class sociology majors will take or is taking. It has been said that a major should have "... a beginning, middle, and an end – each contributing in a different way to the overall aim of the major" (Association of America Colleges, 1990:9). This course exist so that a student's growth may be assessed in reference to the level of accrued sociological knowledge, ability to perform critical thinking, the skills of writing across the discipline, and the capability of communicating orally using sociological jargon. Throughout this course and because of its design the student will be expected to "...integrate, synthesize, critique, and apply the concepts, theories, and methods articulated in the sociology curriculum" [W. Smith, Teaching Sociology, 1993, 21(3):250].

This course will assist the student in considering or developing a plan for professional employment. A portion of our class time will be spent investigating what one can do with a sociology degree? An introduction of possible levels of employment in the private or public sectors will be reviewed.

In a unique way this course is seen as a capstone, "the end." "This course endeavors to crystallize students' knowledge and appreciation of the discipline. [It] provides closure to students' undergraduate sociology experience, and [it will] assess their understanding of the discipline" [W. Smith, Teaching Sociology, 1993, 21(3):250]. This class will be an integrative tool to assist students in framing all they have learned and experienced into what some may call sociology of sociology.

Stated in another manner, this seminar will highlight the historical and early development of the discipline (sociology). It will be an investigation and review of the dominant theoretical paradigms and their connections to the explanations of today's society(ies) in operations. The overarching aim of this seminar or capstone (as is addressed in many departments) class is to draw all that has been presented in various sociology classes into some semblance of order and to introduce the student to the professional realm in which sociology will be applied. Thomas Schmid (1993:219) has stated this idea in this manner: "... 'talking and doing sociology' remain appropriate course guidelines, much of the talk may be about how to talk sociologically, and a typical product of the course may be closer to an awkward sociological assemblage than to an elegant masterpiece. [I]ntegrating students' earlier coursework remains a fundamental mandate, fostering their continuing affiliation with the discipline becomes equally important."

Course Objectives:

The course objectives are constructed based on the course goals, and the techniques employed in the learning outcomes assessment are to assist the student in the formulation of an overall sociological perspective, and to detect how the student anticipate using his/her degree in sociology.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

The course objectives relate or connect to several course goals:

1. Students are to possess at least an intermediate (average) amount of sociological knowledge. Thus, the student should be familiar with the majority of the sociological concepts that exist in most introductory textbooks.
 - a. To measure this objective students will be expected to use the sociological concepts and jargon during class activities
 - b. To measure this objective students will be expected to perform at least in an average manner (70 points or better) on a multiple choice and an essay exam to be administered during this course
2. Students should be able to describe the historical social development of sociology; to be familiar enough with the sociological paradigms to the point that they can participate in a class discussion about them; to be able to differentiate between sociology and other social sciences; to be able to present either in written or oral form how (why) he/she knows that sociology is a science.
 - a. During the class there will be graded threaded discussions, and individually written assignments on various sociological concepts and the theoretical paradigms in sociology
 - b. There will be writing assignments that will allow students to express their thoughts and demonstrate their skills concerning what sociology is or is not and how it differs from other social sciences
3. The level of students' appreciation for the research done by sociologists will be examined; in this process students will be expected to have a working knowledge of the relationship between theoretical and methodological issues confronted by sociologists; students are expected to be able to formulate a research project from beginning to end
 - a. Students will engage in reading several research articles and will be graded on how well they can interpret the findings and how well they can explain the various parts of a research article
 - b. Each student will write a research paper; this paper must be written using the American Sociological Association (ASA) or the American Psychological Association (APA) style of writing
4. Students will become familiar and investigate what professional employment exists for sociology majors
 - a. Students will participate in reading assigned research articles pertaining to sociology majors and careers; after reading designated material students will be graded on their level of participation in class discussion and other activities pertaining to the assigned readings
 - b. Each student will contribute to the development of a list of professional positions or occupations which are occupied by people with a sociology degree

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

5. Acquaint students with the real world of securing professional employment with a sociology degree
 - a. Students will develop/compose a resume which will be graded
 - b. Students will review and discuss information about interviewing, writing letters of reference, and dressing for success; assignments and activities will exist to measure how well students handle or determine how well students perform these tasks

Suggested Readings:

(The Professor reserves the right to identify any additional reading material he deems beneficial in the teaching of this class).

Student Learning Outcomes

Student Learning Outcomes reflect what the student ought to accomplish or be able to perform after completing this course. The student learning outcomes reflect the course goals and course objectives.

1. Students will participate in class discussions where they will be able to demonstrate their level of sociological jargon usage and understanding of the sociological concepts.
2. Students will be able to demonstrate their level of sociological knowledge/information by successfully achieving more than 80% of the possible scoring on an objective and essay type exams.
3. Students will become familiar with possible/available positions of employment for their degree by collecting professional employment announcements for which a person with their degree/major may qualify.
4. Students will develop a professional looking resume, cover letter, and a letter of reference for this course which may also be used outside of this course.
5. Students will demonstrate their level of developing, constructing, and conducting a research project by doing so for this class. The process of achieving this learning outcome has not been determined for this online course as yet.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Minimal Technical Skills Needed

The class will use the D2L learning management system. Students in the class may be required to use or be able to perform tasks employing Microsoft Word, PowerPoint, and using presentation and graphics programs, etc.

Instructional Methods

Course Requirements & Assignments

1. Discussion:

During this course students will participate in a weekly threaded discussion. This assignment will allow students to demonstrate their gained knowledge of sociology.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Twelve weeks of threaded discussions at 10 pts., each, total 120 pts.

These will be Threaded Discussions, meaning each student will see what their classmates have written. Each student's discussion must add some worthwhile thought to the topic or idea being discussed. Although the number of words or size/length of the discussion will be considered, there is not a set number of words or length of discussion required. The discussion must contribute and be worthy of points as determined by the professor. Brevity will not get you maximum points. However, long discussions not focused on the topic or relevant to the topic also will not get you maximum points.

All Threaded Discussions are due by Sunday, 11:59pm of that week.

2. Class Writing Assignments:

Students will participate in five (5) writing exercises, this will permit them to demonstrate their knowledge of sociology and to practice their skills of writing clear ideas and developing content within a limited timeframe. The topic will be provided by the professor which may relate to the discussion or a topic of the day that a major in sociology ought to be familiar with and understand. Each writing will be worth 15 points. Missed writing exercises cannot be made up.

These writings will be done in the classroom. No length is pre-determined; the student must write to satisfy the task.

[If resources are used in either Threaded Discussions or Class Writings, proper citations must be employed. You are expected to use APA or ASA style citations.]

3. Testing:

There will be two graded tests, one will be composed of multiple choice questions and the other one will be complete essay. These tests will be over the review of sociological material covered from the introductory text, and any additional required readings assigned during this class.

- The essay test will be composed of at least 5 questions (the number of essay questions may vary); this test will be worth 100 points. We will use a class periods to write/take this essay test in the classroom. Students will use a Blue Book for this exam. The date for the essay exam is December 3, 2025 during the regular class time.
- The multiple choice test will be composed of fifty items/questions. The test will be worth 100 points. This test will be conducted in the classroom on December 12, 2025.

4. Resume, Cover Letter, & Letter of Reference:

Each student will develop a resume, cover letter and letter of reference so that they will have a rather well organized and usable resume upon graduation. Students are encouraged to review various material on resume writing or visit the Career Development office (virtually) before developing, designing their resume, cover letter and reference letter. Your reference letter must be written by you, for you, but as if you are someone else.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

The due date is October 25, 2025.

- This assignment will be worth 50 points as identified here
 - Resume will be worth 30 points
 - Cover Letter will be worth 10 points
 - Letter of Reference will be worth 10 points

5. Research Paper:

This assignment will allow students to continue demonstrating their ability to construct a senior quality research paper. Students will demonstrate their skills in conceiving a thought and following it through to completion. Students may use the ASA or APA style of writing and citation (students ought to know the difference between these two styles of citation). The format for this assignment will be presented by the professor before the assignment is initiated. This assignment will be submitted through D2L. The due date is November 24, 2025 by 11:59pm..

- The research paper assignment will be worth 70 points.
- The paper must have at least 3 references.
- The paper must be at least 5 pages (not including the cover or the reference pages).

In the social and behavioral sciences (including Criminal Justice), we use APA (American Psychological Association) format. As a rule of thumb, one cites whenever they are paraphrasing other people's words or when they quote other's words directly. You may learn to cite from a variety of different sources including the APA Tutorial and the sources listed below and in the CJ 500 Orientation Course.

www.apastyle.org

<http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/560/02/>

www.library.cornell.edu/resrch/citmanage/apa

It is the student's responsibility to understand how to cite properly. If you have questions, feel free to ask. You are also encouraged to read/review the handouts on the research paper given out by the professor.

6. Job/Position Presentation:

It is essential that students become familiar with what types of professional employment they can anticipate obtaining with a sociology degree. Students will use this assignment to gather an idea of possible employment venues after graduation. This assignment will be submitted through D2L. The due is November 4, 2025 by 11:59pm. These position announcements must be actual job advertisements, not job descriptions pulled from a resource book, such Stephen Lambert's Great Jobs for Sociology Majors, 2008 McGraw Hill.

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

- Each student will present 2 position announcements in a threaded discussion format
- Each position shared will be worth 10 points
- The description of the information needed to be gained will be given out by the professor before the due date of this assignment

Student Responsibilities or Tips for Success in the Course

Tips on How to be successful in this Class:

1. Students must commit serious time to reading the assigned readings.
2. Student should ask questions of the professor if there is any information he/she does not understand.
3. Students should regularly attend class.
4. Students should take good, clear and understandable notes from the lectures and class discussions.
5. Students must commit a serious amount of time to preparation for the exams, writings and other assignments.
6. Students must make the most of the "easy" grades so they help to balance or soften the more difficult grades.
