COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course, which does not assume any previous study of philosophy, will allow you many opportunities to explore important philosophical issues addressed by the Ancient Greeks and Romans (from about the 6c BCE to around the 3c CE). These issues include the sources of knowledge, of identity, of morality, of theology, of justice, to name but several. We will read a number of arguments that explore different ideas about where those concepts originate and how our thinking about them might determine our actions. The course is organized so that conflicting, competing, and even complementary theories will be investigated and can be discussed in interesting and civil ways. Moreover, you are invited to attend the f2f class via Zoom on TTh from 9:30am to 10:45am. A link will be provided. In any case, you're expected to watch the recorded Zoom lectures and discussions in order to follow the reading and to answer some discussion prompts and response paper prompts.

One textbook is required:

Introductory Readings in Ancient Greek and Roman Philosophy (Second Edition). Eds. Reeve and Miller. Hackett, 2015. Paperback ISBN 978-1-62466-352-9, e-book ISBN 9781624663543

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Students will write response papers that demonstrate an application of important philosophical concepts and how those concepts might be applied to contemporary issues.
- Students will contribute comments to the discussion board to demonstrate understanding of important philosophical concepts.
- Students will complete a Transformative Project, examining some aspect of their own lives with regard to at least one significant philosophical concept.
- Students will engage with multiple perspectives in exploring the human dimensions of real-world situations and problems.
- Students will be able to analyze, evaluate, or solve problems when given a set of circumstances, data, texts, or art.
- In written, oral, and/or visual communication, ETAMU students will communicate in a manner appropriate to audience and occasion, with an evident message and organizational structure.
- Students will understand and practice academic honesty.
- Students will demonstrate an understanding of societal and/or civic issues.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- to acquire an overview of the field of philosophy and its major subfields
- to acquire an overview of the various cultural and social influences on thinking throughout the ages
- to formulate articulate responses to the reading assignments and ensuing discussions

ASSIGNMENTS

Response Papers: You'll write five short papers that will allow you to make some kind of contemporary application to the concepts we learn in class. Separate assignment sheets will be provided in the course shell.

Discussion Posts: You'll be expected to contribute to the discussion board each week in order to demonstrate your understanding of the reading.

Transformative Project: This assignment will be similar to a response paper, but it will require your examining some aspect of your own life with regard to at least one significant philosophical concept. (The unexamined life is not worth living, as we will hear later this semester.) Specific assignment details are forthcoming.

Extra Credit: An extra credit assignment will be available near the end of the semester.

As a rule I do not accept late assignments, so please be attentive to deadlines. If you must miss an upcoming deadline, you will need to contact me to make prior satisfactory arrangements for submitting the assignment. Failure to make prior satisfactory arrangements will result in your forfeiting the right to turn in that assignment. An extra credit assignment to be named later will be an opportunity to restore points from a missed assignment or quiz or simply to add points to the total grade.

EVALUATION

Assignment Values	Final Grade Ranges
Response Papers 50 pts. (5@ 10 pts. each)	A=180--200
Transformative Project 20 pts.	B=160--179
Discussion Posts 30 pts. (15 @ 2 pts. each)	C=140--159
Extra Credit 10 pts.	D=120--139
	F=0--119

ATTENDANCE

Regular attendance in the course shell is important for several reasons, but it is especially important for you to keep up with the assignments in this class. The tentative calendar below offers only the most general description of activities; more detail will be provided in class as the semester goes on. Failure to make prior satisfactory arrangements will result in your forfeiting the right to turn in that assignment. As per university policy, excessive absences (three weeks' worth) may result in your being dropped from the course.

PLAGIARISM/ACADEMIC DISHONESTY STATEMENT

Instructors in the Department of Literature and Languages do not tolerate plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonesty. Instructors uphold and support the highest academic standards, and students are expected to do likewise. Penalties for students guilty of academic dishonesty include disciplinary probation, suspension, and expulsion. (ETAMU Code of Student Conduct 5.b[1,2,3]).

AI use in course [Draft 2, May 25, 2023] East Texas A&M University acknowledges that there are legitimate uses of Artificial Intelligence, ChatBots, or other software that has the capacity to generate text, or suggest replacements for text beyond individual words, as determined by the instructor of the course. Any use of such software must be documented. Any undocumented use of such software constitutes an instance of academic dishonesty (plagiarism). Individual instructors may disallow entirely the use of such software for individual assignments or for the entire course. Students should be aware of such requirements and follow their instructors' guidelines. If no instructions are provided the student should assume that the use of such software is disallowed. In any case, students are fully responsible for the content of any assignment they submit, regardless of whether they used an AI, in any way. This specifically includes cases in which the AI plagiarized another text or misrepresented sources.
