Instructional Methods

This is a face-to-face class. We will meet on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 1:00 - 1:50 pm in Ferguson Auditorium and Social Sciences (SS) 313.

For most classes, we will start with a review from the previous class or of the reading homework due that day. From there, I will give a brief lecture of new material and then we will engage in a class discussion or activity. I provide as much in-class writing time as possible, so you have many opportunities to seek help on assignments. I provide revision-based feedback on all major writing assignments submitted to D2L.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Student Responsibilities or Tips for Success in the Course

For each class meeting, come to class on time and prepared. Coming to class prepared means having completed any reading and/or writing homework beforehand and bringing the required materials like a charged device for textbook access and notetaking.

Here's a brief list of responsibilities and tips for success:

1. Successful students refer to the syllabus and schedule frequently throughout the semester. The syllabus schedule is our foundational document that guides the course. You'll need it to plan your weeks effectively.
2. Successful students attend class regularly. Attendance matters! Really. Statistics show that 100% of students with 6 or less absences passed the course. Students with 10 or more absences are significantly more likely to fail the course.
3. Successful students communicate with their professors and peers regularly and respectfully. This class is not a lecture course which means you'll be mostly discussing, writing, and collaborating with your peers to make progress toward your learning goals and major writing projects. Be respectful of everyone's ideas, even if you don't agree with them. If you miss class or have questions, reach out to your accountability buddy or other peers in the class to find out what you missed or answer your question. When possible, email your professors to let them know you're missing class in advance. Once you've reviewed the syllabus schedule, weekly D2L module, and talked with your peers about what you missed, email your professors with any remaining questions that you have.
4. Successful students plan their weeks with organizational tools. I highly recommend a planner. If that's not your style, the Writing Center offers free organizational tools that you might find useful.
5. Successful students study effectively with techniques like practice testing and distributed practice. This means using flashcards (practice testing) to help you learn new concepts and reviewing them weekly (distributed practice). It also means working on writing projects a little bit each day leading up to the due date (distributed practice). In other words, don't cram the night before!

Note: This information adapted from "Some Habits for Success in College" in Writing Inquiry, 3rd edition. For more information about each of these strategies, see your textbook in Top Hat.

Here's some additional tips for success that I highly recommend:

- Accountability Buddy: Find someone in the class to help you stay on track. This is someone you can text or email with questions about the class, reminders about deadlines, and even form a study/writing group with.
- Annotate Assignment Prompts: Annotate each assignment prompt to help you understand the requirements, give you a chance to ask questions about what's confusing, and use as a checklist to complete your writing projects.

COURSE ASSESSMENT

As an instructor, my approach to classroom assessment is labor-based.

Here's how it works. Each assignment is worth a certain number of points. You earn points by completing assignments.

The semester portfolio will be graded as letter grades (e.g., A, B, etc.). Other major assignments will be graded as: Accept (full credit), Revise (half credit), or No credit (0).

In the D2L gradebook, assignments except the final project will be marked as:

- Full Credit when the project is fully completed according to the assignment prompt and turned in promptly. Strong effort is evident and only minor revisions would be beneficial.
- Half Credit when elements of the project are incomplete and/or the project was not turned in promptly. Some effort is evident but major revisions would be beneficial. For assignments marked Half Credit, you are able and encouraged to revise and resubmit.
- No credit when a project wasn't completed and/or wasn't turned in.

The only reasons you may not receive full credit on an assignment are:

1. Late submissions: The original deadline is important—both for you and your instructor! The day that you submit a major writing assignment marks the end of one unit and the beginning of a new one. This means that it is hard to catch up if you get behind. The deadline is also important for your instructor to provide feedback in a timely manner. However, I understand that sometimes mental or physical illness, family emergencies, work, and other unforeseen circumstances may affect your ability to complete work on time. If you need more time to complete an assignment, fill out the Extension Form before the due date. You will only lose points on a late assignment if you DO NOT fill out the Extension Form. You will not lose points for a late assignment if you fill out the Extension form before the due date. (Note: This Extension Form is adapted from Dr. Rebecca Rowe's.) Late major assignments submitted without an extension form or beyond the extra days granted in your extension form will receive only half credit.
2. Short Projects: Each major assignment you complete this semester gives you room to explore the unit's concepts within a certain length—a word count for an essay, a time length for a podcast or video, etc. You may lose points if your project is significantly shorter than required.
3. Misunderstood-the-Assignment Projects: Although many of the writing assignment prompts give you room to explore, there are certain requirements that still need to be met including engaging with the core concepts and questions included in the prompt. For example, if an assignment asks you to support your argument with credible sources and you do not include any secondary sources or only include sources that are not credible, then you may not receive full credit.

Feedback

I provide revision-based feedback on all your major writing assignments submitted to D2L. This feedback is meant to promote improvement in your writing process so that your writing improves with each new assignment. For more information about higher order concerns and the writing process, see “Making Collaboration Worth It” and “Good Writing is Always Hard” in Unit 10 of Writing Inquiry on Top Hat. This feedback is important not only to your learning, but also because you may submit revised projects as part of your 40-point final mission (Capstone Project).

In sum, you’re graded on how much labor you put into the course. This should make the class less stressful because you are in control of your learning path and grade.

*My assessment approach is inspired by and adapted from Dr. Ashanka Kumari (ETAMU) and Dr. Rebecca Rowe’s (ETAMU) labor-based grading policies and syllabi.

Midterm and final grades in this course will be based on the following scale:

A = 90%-100%
B = 80%-89%
C = 70%-79%
D = 60%-69%
F = 59% or Below

Weights of the assessments in the calculation of the final letter grade.

Note: Personal computer and internet connection problems do not excuse the requirement to complete all course work in a timely and satisfactory manner. Each student needs to have a backup method to deal with these inevitable problems. These methods might include the availability of a backup PC at home or work, the temporary use of a computer at a friend's home, the local library, office service companies, Starbucks, a East Texas A&M campus open computer lab, etc.

COURSE AND UNIVERSITY PROCEDURES/POLICIES

Course Specific Procedures/Policies

Email Etiquette

For a light-hearted and humorous explanation of academic email etiquette, read “How to Email Your Professor (without being annoying AF)” by Laura Portwood-Stacer here.

In sum, all emails to your instructor should include the following elements:

1. Subject Line: Your subject line should be clear and specific. Recommended format: Name. Class and Section #. Topic of Email.
2. Salutation: Greet your instructor by their preferred name.
3. Body: Keep your message clear, concise, and respectful (it should not look like a text message). Use a respectful tone throughout. Remember to keep your audience in mind and that every interaction is a reflection of your academic persona.
4. Closing: End your email with an appropriate closing followed by your full name.

For more details about these elements, an example email, and a template, see “Some Habits for Success in College” in Writing Inquiry through your Top Hat platform.

Attendance

I take attendance during our ice breaker or review session at the beginning of each class. I will maintain an attendance record all semester. Attendance counts for 10% of your final grade. Three tardies count as one absence. Your attendance grade is graded as follows:

A 0-4 absences

B 5-9 absences

C 10-14 absences

D 15-18 absences

F 19 and more absences.

“It is important to attend class on time and come to class prepared (preparation means having completed any reading/homework beforehand and bringing the required materials like a charged device for textbook access and notetaking). Attending class on time ensures that you do not miss any course announcements, reminders, lectures, or activities. Attending your writing class is important beyond receiving information because your writing classes are not primarily “lecture” courses. Instead English 1301 and English 1302 help you build your critical reading, writing, and thinking skills through class discussions, in-class activities, and peer-to-peer collaboration. Learning, in these classes specifically, is a social activity that is only impactful if you attend, engage, and participate.”

For more information about attendance and participation, see “Some Habits for Success in College” in Writing Inquiry through your Top Hat platform.

For more information about the attendance policy please visit the Attendance webpage and Procedure 13.99.99.R0.01.

Submission Guidelines

You will submit your writing assignments on D2L. You must use a D2L compliant file type such as Word .docx, PDF, PowerPoint .pptx, etc. Apple Users: Pages is not a D2L compliant file type.

Interaction with Instructor Statement

My goal is to be as flexible and compassionate as possible. If you have questions or need support, please email me or come to my office hours. I will do whatever I can to help you meet your learning goals. To answer emails as quickly and accurately as possible, please follow the email etiquette guidelines described above and in “Some Habits for Success in College” in Writing Inquiry (available on Top Hat). I respond to emails within 48-hours, Monday-Friday, 8 a.m. – 5 p.m.

Grievance Procedure

Students who have concerns regarding their courses should first address those concerns with the assigned instructor in order to reach a resolution. Students who are unsatisfied with the outcome of that conversation or have not been able to meet individually with their instructor, whether in-person, by email, by telephone, or by another communication medium, should then schedule an appointment with Dr. Dr. Jason A. Walker, the Director of Writing (Jason.Walker@etamu.edu). In the case when the Director of Writing is the instructor, the student should contact Dr. Charles Woods, Chair of the Department of Literature and Languages (Charles.Woods@etamu.edu). Where applicable, students should also consult University Procedure 13.99.99.R0.05 (“Student Appeal of Instructor Evaluation”).

Syllabus Change Policy

The syllabus is a guide. Circumstances and events, such as student progress, may make it necessary for the instructor to modify the syllabus during the semester. Any changes made to the syllabus will be announced in advance.

University Specific Procedures

Student Conduct

All students enrolled at the University shall follow the tenets of common decency and acceptable behavior conducive to a positive learning environment. The Code of Student Conduct is described in detail in the Student Guidebook.

<http://www.tamuc.edu/Admissions/oneStopShop/undergraduateAdmissions/studentGuidebook.aspx>

Further, an environment free from discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression will be maintained.

East Texas A&M University Writing Program Artificial Intelligence Policy and Resources

East Texas A&M University (ETAMU) Writing Program acknowledges that there are legitimate uses of Artificial Intelligence (AI), Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI), and Artificial General Intelligence (AGI). The ETAMU Writing Program is guided by national, flagship organizations representing the discipline of English and the field of Writing Studies, including the Modern Language Association (MLA), National Council on the Teaching of English (NCTE), and the Conference on College Composition and Communication (CCCC) regarding the theorization and teaching of critical AI literacy. ETAMU Writing Program values a spectrum of beliefs about AI, GenAI, and AGI, ranging from ethical integration to absolute refusal. ETAMU Writing Program believes in and practices critical AI literacy alongside ethical, responsible integration of AI, GenAI, and AGI in our writing instruction, appropriately. We teach students to document their AI use in their writing and other curriculum deliverables while highlighting educational concerns about using these technologies. ETAMU Writing Program instructors share their position on and preferences for AI, GenAI, and AGI integration with students, and students follow the instructor's guidelines and the requirements of the course. Undocumented uses of AI, GenAI, and AGI can constitute an instance of academic dishonesty, including cases related to issues like plagiarism and misrepresentation in student deliverables.
