Course Description

ENGL 1302: Written Argument/Research. Three semester hours. This course provides students with advanced training in communication skills, emphasizing the writing and reading of argumentative prose and adapting writing to alternate audiences. Students will write weekly, including such texts as journals, reading response logs, summaries of argumentative texts, argumentative papers, and longer papers integrating secondary research. Activities include close reading of sample texts, both student and professional. Some sections will emphasize special topics in both reading and writing. Prerequisites: Grade of C or better in English 1301

The syllabus/schedule are subject to change.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. Define important terms/concepts including, but not limited to, literacy, community, research, ethics, knowledge, ethnography, and writing processes;
2. Discuss the ways these terms expand based on cultural and communicative practices;
3. Locate scholarly research related to key terms/concepts;
4. Examine scholarly, personal, and/or multimodal texts that detail varying understandings and applications of key terms/concepts;
5. Develop writing and research processes appropriate for ethically studying the literacy of a specific community;
6. Engage in collaboration that supports individualized and communal understanding and writing development;
7. Collect primary ethnographic data;
8. Organize collected data in order to understand specific literacy community practices;
9. Consider the various affordances and constraints of composing using different technologies (analog, digital, and/or multimodal), research methods, practices, styles, and/or languages;
10. Compose texts across different genres and media of writing that further expand key terms/concepts based on primary ethnographic research and engagement with trustworthy secondary research;
11. Reflect on your writing experiences and literacy practices;
12. Design individualized learning goals appropriate for a first-year writing course; and
13. Assess individualized learning goals based on labor and performance alongside feedback from peers and the instructor.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Minimal Technical Skills Needed

Students must be able to compose and format their essays on a computer using word software like Microsoft Word. They must also know how to access materials through the D2L learning management system and upload their essays by the designated deadline.

Instructional Methods

This is a Face-to-Face course. We will participate in discussions in class and through D2L.

Student Responsibilities or Tips for Success in the Course

Absences are in the form of not responding to discussion boards. To ensure success, students are expected to respond weekly to discussions and submit work by the deadlines. Staying ahead or maintaining a healthy routine with coursework will help ensure students are successful.
