

A MESSAGE FROM THE REGISTRAR

The Office of the Registrar is the official guardian of student data for East Texas A&M University (ETAMU). The mission of the Office of the Registrar is to maintain accurate records of academic progress for each student, to protect privacy and security of academic and personal information, to provide high quality service, and to uphold University policies and procedures in a professional and friendly atmosphere.

What is FERPA?

ETAMU abides by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) of 1974, as amended. FERPA is a federal law that protects the privacy of student educational records. The intent of the legislation is to protect the rights of students and to ensure the privacy and accuracy of educational records.

What are Educational Records?

With certain exceptions, an educational record is any record (1) directly related to a student and (2) maintained by the University. A student has the right to inspect and review records maintained by the school. Educational records include information recorded in any way, including, but not limited to, handwriting, print, computer media, video/audio tape, etc. that are in the possession of any school official. This includes transcripts or other records obtained from a school at which the student was previously enrolled.

Educational records do not include records of instructional, administrative, and educational personnel, which are the sole possession of the maker and are not accessible or revealed to any individual (except temporary substitutes); University security records; student health records; employment records; or alumni records. Health records may be reviewed by physicians of the students choosing. In addition, students may not see financial information submitted by their parents, any confidential letters or recommendations to which they have waived their rights of inspection and review, or records containing information about more than one student. In the latter case, a student will be permitted access only to that part of the record pertaining to him or her.

What are the Rights of Students under FERPA?

The primary rights of students under FERPA are:

1. The right to inspect and review educational records.
 - The student must submit a written request to the Registrar.
 - Records covered under the Act will be made available within 45 days.
 - Schools are not required to provide copies of records unless, for reasons such as great distance, it is impossible for students to review.
 - Schools may charge a fee for copies.
2. The right to request that a school correct educational records which they believe to be inaccurate or misleading.
 - Initiated by contact with the Registrar, either in person or in writing.
 - The student may make a written request to the Registrar for a formal hearing if amendment is denied.
 - University panel will deliver written decision to all involved parties. Students who disagree with panel decision may place a statement with the educational record setting forth his/her view about the contested information.
3. The right to have some control over the disclosure of information from educational records.
 - No one outside the University, with the exception of a person or company with whom the university has contracted, may have access to, nor will the University disclose, any information from a students' educational record without the written consent of the student.
4. The right to file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education concerning alleged failures by the institution to comply with the requirements of the Act:

A school official has legitimate educational interest if the official needs to review an education record in order to fulfill his or her professional responsibility); those who have a legitimate education interest in the records, and persons in an emergency in order to protect the health or safety of the student or other persons.
